

Social and Behavioral Sciences

- learn about the nature and development of human behavior and institutions through time
- become aware of the complex and ambiguous nature of changing human experience